Post Office Willing to Re-examine Issues, Seek Compromise Solution

by Leta Mach

Although a solution to the post office problem was not reached at Monday's work session, city and post office officials, pleased with the positive atmosphere during the evening, felt a solution would be reached soon. In response to a postal request for as much input as possible, the city promised to give the postal service information about possible sites for a postal facility and the location of future commercial development in the city which could affect the postal service's decision.

"I'm glad to have you here," Councilman Richard Castaldi told the new Maryland/D.C. District Manager Gene Fleming, explaining that he felt more comfortable about the evening's negotiations than he had at previous meetings. Congresswoman Gladys Spellman explained that she felt the same about the meeting. Fleming noted that the postal service shared the city's concerns because their employees and customers were part of the community. "We both have a problem; we have to face up to it and come away with a solution," he said.

Timetable

According to the original timetable, the project should already have been finished. Thus, Fleming would like to finish quickly, taking 30 days to examine the alternatives and after that do a cost analysis of each. Fleming asked to have the city's concerns "so when we make a decision, we can defend it." City Manager James Giese expressed his willingness to meet with post office real estate people to examine the sites for a facility.

Outlining postal concerns and alternatives, Fleming expressed willingness to reexamine the issue and look for compromise. The post office is concerned about its employees, the lack of space in the Greenbelt facility, the lack of secured parking for postal vehicles and the energy crisis. Fleming cautioned that the post office still has to be cost effective. In that regard, he was especially concerned about the million square feet of new office space that is to be built in Greenbelt. The new offices may change the center of mail density and the new facility should be as close to that center as possible to keep the total carrier mileage to a minimum.

Fleming listed the alternatives as: (1) one facility, (2) a finance station (customer services) in the center with a new carrier annex (distribution facility) elsewhere, and (3) contract station in the center with a carrier annex elsewhere.

With a finance station, the postal service would run the operation with a full range of customer services in the center. However, the facility at 2,109 square feet would be smaller than the present quarters. The carrier annex in this option would be an industrial facility for handling mail and with no customer services. Under a contract station, a private business in the center would offer customer services (stamps, mailing of packages, money orders) and could include lock/boxes. However, parcels or registered letters could not be picked up. A new carrier annex would include both customer services and distribution facilities.

Councilman Charles Schwan

did not believe that any center business had the space for a contract station. Mayor Gil Weidenfeld wondered how long such a station would last. Fleming agreed that there were problems with a contract station. Although its permanence could not be guaranteed, they had worked in some places, he said.

Schwan and Mayor Gil Weidenfeld did not feel a single facility was possible in the core of Greenbelt. Candidly, Schwan added that there was not much possibility of locating a new facility at Candy Cane City or the lower parking lot. Castaldi felt that the "one facility concept cannot be located in the core without a detrimental effect on traffic." He added that he would prefer to have the big facility on a main thoroughfare.

Citizen Bill Wilkerson explained that he had quickly found eight or nine vacant sites at intersections from Glendale to the railroad tracks west of the city. In response to Wilkerson's question, Fleming said he was not sure how important closeness to the railroad tracks would be for the post office. The area behind the American Legion has been previously mentioned as a possible site. However, Fleming said that there were problems with its access road. A location by a traffic light would be

Greenbelt Players Schedule Production

Christacos Agrees to Use of Theatre As Cultural Arts Center for Two Months

by Konrad Herling

An interim agreement has been reached between the Cultural Arts Center, Inc. and theatre owner George Christacos providing for rental of the theatre on a month-to-month basis. The City Council assisted in the successful effort to defer a final negotiated lease deadline for an indefinite period. In addition, the Greenbelt Players, nee Grenoble Theatre Guild, will present a play in the theatre during the last weekend in March and the first weekend in April.

The arrangement with owner Christacos was reached with the assistance of Councilman Richard Castaldi and Tony McCarthy. It requires a rent of $500 plus utilities for each of February and March, an amount to be renegotiated with Christacos upon the expiration of that period.

The Greenbelt Players will be deciding within the next few weeks which of three plays will be presented. Announcements for tryouts will be made at that point throughout the community. Angela Schreiber, one of the key actresses involved in the production, said, "We want as many people to come to these tryouts as is possible. I hope a lot of talent from the Greenbelt community will show up." She also made clear that anyone with talents or knowledge in carpentry, electrical operations, lighting, sound systems, painting, or just hammering a nail are welcome and necessary. Summarizing her comments at last Sunday's Cultural Arts meeting, Schreiber said, about the production and anticipated impact, "We want people to know that this is their playhouse, their theatre; that you won't have to go to the Kennedy Center to see a good play."

Programming

The Greenbelt Players performance will be just one of a number of events to be held at the theatre. Regularly scheduled programming featuring films, coffeehouses, concerts and speakers will commence the last weekend of January. Those interested in assisting the operation of these events or in participating in any of the coffeehouses as performers are urged to call Dave Benson, chairman of the programming committee, at 414-2598.

Co-op Party Postponed

One casualty of Friday night, January 4's snowfall was the 40th Anniversary celebration of Greenbelt Cooperative, Inc. (formerly GSC). The program had been planned to take place at Center School, and when the county schools shut down Friday afternoon, all activities scheduled for those buildings were automatically cancelled as well.

Bruce Bowman, chairman for the anniversary party, said a new date will be set when the GCI board of directors holds its next meeting.

Toastmasters Club Elects 2 Greenbelters Officers

Delores Ramsey of Charles-towne Village was elected President and Stephen Polaschik of 12-D Ridge Road was elected treasurer of the Columbian Toastmasters Club which meets on the first and third Wednesday of each month at the Knights of Columbus Hall, located at 9220 Baltimore Boulevard, College Park. The meetings of the club begin at 7:30 p.m. and end approximately 9 p.m., including a short intermission.

Visitors are welcome to attend the meetings to learn more about Toastmasters training which is aimed at improving oral expression of thought; developing abilities to appear effectively before audiences; and developing the habit of analytical listening. This training is done in a spirit of mutual helpfulness in a friendly environment.

Legion Auxiliary

To the Editor:

Greenbelt Unit No. 136, American Legion Auxiliary, wishes all a healthy and prosperous New Year. We plan to continue offering our services in 1980—the new decade.

Many persons were remembered at Christmas and Thanksgiving with gifts and/or baskets filled with goodies. We were happy to share special moments with those who needed a friend during the holiday season.

Our Junior group spread Santa's cheer to the Greenbelt Convalescent Center residents, singing carols and brightening meal-times with handmade holiday placemats. Continuing to share, they sorted and donated over 250 pieces of new and used clothing for Great Oaks Center.

We are a veterans organization and we didn't forget our veterans! The women patients at Washington VA Medical Center were delighted with the decorated perfumed soap tray favors our juniors made for them. Mrs. Link, our community service chairman, sent best wishes to 18 servicemen/women who could not be with their families during this Yule season.

Cards were sent to our citizens being held hostage in Iran, expressing our concern and our belief regarding their speedy release.

Our Unit is here to aid the community, and any persons who are in need. Because we frequently ask for your cooperation on our projects, we wanted you to know the results of your cooperation. Please let us know how we can be of further support to the community.

President

Gong Show II

To the Editor:

The Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center is a reality and can survive with community support. The main ingredient of a successful Center is, as with anything else, money. The Cultural Arts Center needs as much as it can possibly get.

The Greenbelt Jaycees are helping in this effort by sponsoring Greenbelt Gong Show II. You can help simply by attending the show. For a nominal fee you can be a supporter of the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center. For the admission price, you will be treated to a zany night of humor and talent and possibly win one of the many door prizes being offered by the local merchants.

Our Mayor, Gil Weidenfeld, has offered his time as a Celebrity Judge. Joining him will be Maryland Terrapins running back, Charlie Wysocki, the leading rusher of the Atlantic Conference for 1979. Rounding off the list of Celebrity Judges is Cindy Baker, Miss Prince Georges County, 1979.

The show will be held on Saturday, January 19 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Hugh's Grenoble Hall. We have quite a few contestants and, hopefully, quite a large audience.

It would be quite helpful if people could bring baked goods for sale at the show. This will lend a bit more financial support to this effort and provide goodies for the audience.

Why not support the Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center? Come to Greenbelt Gong Show II.

Mishkan Torah

Roy Mittleman, a third year student of the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College and a master's candidate in Psychology of Religion at Temple University, will serve as guest rabbi at the Mishkan Torah on Friday and Saturday. On January 18 at 8 p.m. he will discuss the Jews of Morocco and on January 19 at 9:30 a.m. his topic will be "The Jews for Jesus, an Eyewitness Account." Interested residents are welcome.

Information Needed

To the Editor:

Unlike some members of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., our committee does feel that the chemical issue is important and ought not be taken lightly.

Accordingly, our group is devoting considerable time and energy in an effort to determine the facts.

To date the investigation has been hampered by individuals who claim to have information, but have refused to divulge it to the committee when asked. Such refusals to assist the committee are counter-productive and contrary to the intent of the committee. On the other hand, those responsible individuals who have cooperated have assisted us greatly.

We need all the help we can get. If you have any information concerning the areas that we are looking into, please contact us.

Personal Contact Brigade

To the Editor:

Out of 1,596 eligible voters, only 300 took the trouble to attend the important GHI membership meeting to vote on the necessity for increasing their monthly payments. The increase made necessary by the tremendous rise in heating oil prices, which required our democratically elected management to ask a reasonable budget increase in order to maintain our homes and continue to provide for our comfort and enjoyment.

The apathy of our GHI membership, with a few exceptions, and the lack of understanding of the ideals and objectives of our cooperative and the obligation to provide our elected authority with the financial means to provide for our "common good", is appalling. The majority of those attending the meeting, numbering only 186, fell for the same old deceptive tactics exercised by a few that have impeded our progress in the past and threaten our financial integrity at present, to the point where we might even face the loss of our homes.

The bag of dirty tricks employed by these few is to launch a vendetta against the board and cause confusion which diverts the membership from facing up to the grim possibility of financial disaster. Their tactics also have a tendency to discourage members from attending future meetings, which makes the destructive purposes of the few easier to achieve. They used the same bag of tricks during the membership meeting on rehabilitation and almost succeeded in defeating that progressive measure.

Since only 300 people voted on the increase, we must take quick action to hold another general membership meeting to reconsider the budget and monthly payment issue. But this time our members must be alerted to the true facts. We are, therefore, organizing a "Telephone and Personal Contact Brigade" armed with the facts to move our membership to take positive action and turn a deaf ear to those few "agents provocateur" who would destroy our cooperative and cause us to lose our homes.

Will you volunteer to fight to save your homes by joining forces with us to combat the enemy? Call 474-6646 or write to me at 45S Ridge Road.

Boys & Girls Club

by Ernest Varda

During 1979 the Boys and Girls Club membership increased 12% from 363 to 406. The club remains in "AA" status ("AAA" status begins with 500 members).

The number of basketball teams has increased from 13 to 16 while the number of basketball players jumped 18% over the number of 1978 participants.

Of the 16 volunteer coaches, 12 have had prior basketball experience. Tony Bouknight, one of our new volunteers, coached the 14-year-old boys team to a 47-45 victory over Fort Washington ("AAA") in the Prince Georges County Boys and Girls Club Christmas Tournament.

Other new coaches are Ed Daffron, Bob Hawks, and Bob Luddy. They are instructing intramural teams. Experienced coaches; Joann Rowe, Lori Kellaher, and Toni Bram are instructing girls 18, 15, and 13, respectively. Jeff Cumberland, Bob Sonneveldt, Phil Straw, Tony Bouknight, Gene Kellaher, Mike Gielen, Bill Rice, and Mel Scites coach boys ages 18, 17, 15, 14, 13, 12, 11 and 10, respectively. The experienced intramural coaches are Mike Gielen and Steve Leslie.

The club is grateful to the Recreation Department for allocating an additional seven hours of facility space per week over the 1978 allocation. This will enable the teams to continue to practice once the official season begins.

good. Discussing possible sites, Fleming noted amiably that council kept pushing him to Greenbelt Road.

As the evening began, council restated its position for postal officials, who included Tom Comick and the "two Georges," George Dennison and George Glover. Weidenfeld voiced the city's desire to have full customer services remain in the core of the city. He expressed his belief that Greenbelt was special, a place with a real sense of community. One reason for this, he noted, is that it is a walking community. People walk to the center mall to use the post office, he said. "The post office is one of the delicate threads that keep that center together." Further, he reiterated the fears that a postal facility on Parkway and Crescent would change the character of that residential area. In view of Greenbelt's history (the center mall was the first shopping center in the country) Weidenfeld concluded, "Costs aren't everything; don't measure everything by costs."

Citizens Advisory Committee on Busing Hears Demographic Report on County

by Hally Ahearn

At its fifth meeting, on January 7, members of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Busing listened to a report by demographer George Grier from the Council of Governments on the growth, housing turnover and distribution of blacks in Prince Georges County. The difficult task before the committee is to develop principles on which to base their recommendations to the Prince Georges County School Board, while setting up flexible solutions that allow for growth and turnover in the county.

The committee is charged with reviewing present elementary school busing plans in order to recommend means of reducing both the number of students bused for desegregation and the distances some of them are bused, without breaking desegregation guidelines set by the federal courts. Although the school board is not obligated to follow the committee's recommendations, these recommendations must stand up to review by the federal court order to be considered for adoption.

Although Prince Georges County is often regarded as a poor relative, the demographer reminded the committee that the Washington area is one of the wealthiest in the country (exceeded only by Connecticut), that Prince Georges is the third wealthiest county in the metropolitan area (exceeded only by Montgomery and Fairfax), and that this makes the county one of the wealthiest in the nation. This wealth, Grier said, accounts for considerable housing turmoil, for changes in housing as people move up the economic ladder.

Further, he noted that while in the 1960s the area was the most rapidly growing in the nation, in the 1970s this growth slowed. Prince Georges County is now "virtually level" in its rate of growth. Although the area has a large black population, that population has not grown proportionately. The proportion of blacks in the metropolitan area in 1920 was 25 percent; it is 25 percent today.

Washington's black population is relatively wealthy, with one of the highest income averages in the nation. Upwardly mobile blacks contribute to the high rate of housing turnover in the area, although Grier cited that in Prince Georges County the black population is still concentrated in a narrow wedge along Central Avenue. This pattern, once and possibly still reinforced by the real estate industry—"and unfortunately by the school system"—continues, he said. Of course, there are pockets of blacks, and integrated communities, in other parts of the county.

Another trend is dubbed the "baby bust." The average family has dropped from a statistical 3.6 persons to 1.8, causing a dramatic drop in school population. And the public school population has dropped even further since a portion of white students now attend private schools to avoid busing and desegregation.

Any new plan to apportion percentages of black and white students in the public schools along federal guidelines could remain viable for a period of only two or three years, according to the demographer, because of the high rate of housing turnover in the county.

At the present time the committee's charge is limited to elementary schools. One of the committee members, Robert Alcock, presented the results of his attempt to apply a "unitary" concept to the current busing situation among elementary schools in the county to clear up instances of obvious disparity or "overbusing." In one instance two neighboring communities, one once largely black and the other largely white are now one still largely black, the other integrated. He proposed that students from the black community now being bused into the other neighborhood be returned to their neighborhood school, although this would raise the black percentage in that school somewhat, and that students in the now integrated neighborhood be returned to their own neighborhood school, since the neighborhood itself provides an acceptable racial mix. He suggested that the committee might consider "rewarding" integrated communities in this way. In other instances he cited apartment complexes where children are bused to different schools according to what building they live in. In one case children from one building attend an elementary school across the street from the complex, while children from another building are bused some distance. In another case children from one building are bused about 20 miles north. "Surely we can find a closer school for these children to attend," Alcock said.

The committee voted to address the question, "What constitutes an integrated school?" after the school system's Office of Pupil Accounting supplies it with new attendance boundaries based on the number of children attending neighborhood schools. The current guidelines of not less than 10 percent nor more than 50 percent black enrollment in any one school are deemed unrealistic in view of the September 1979 black elementary school enrollment of 49.2 percent.

Should school closings be considered as part of the committee's report? There are currently over 20,000 vacant pupil seats in elementary schools in the county, but in considering this thorny question one of the members recalled that the question of school closings caused more public outcry, more attendance at school board meetings, than did busing. After considerable discussion the committee agreed, in effect, to include the reality of school closings in their deliberations, but not make any recommendations for closing specific schools in order to facilitate racial composition.

At their next meeting on Monday, January 21, 7:30 p.m. at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, the committee expects to have the statistics from the Office of Pupil Accounting, and to discuss the pros and cons of busing for racial balance in Prince Georges County.

The Reverend Harry Taylor of Greenbelt Community Church was recently named by Prince Georges County School Board member Lesley Kreimer to the Citizens Advisory Committee on Busing. Also serving on the committee is Greenbelter Katharine Gough.

Green Ridge House Holiday Parties Held

About seventy Green Ridge House residents attended a Christmas party on December 19. Senator Ed Conroy, Mayor and Mrs. Gil Weidenfeld and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dove were guests.

The residents enjoyed the Pearl Band of Beltsville who furnished the music and entertainment for the evening, free of charge. Door prizes were given out and refreshments were served.

A New Year's Eve party was held on Monday, December 31 from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. Hats and noisemakers were distributed and refreshments were served during the dance.

Our Neighbors

Our deepest sympathy to the members of the French family on the tragic loss of their son and brother, Scott.

Shipboard companion of Judy Goldstein on the Doric was Greenbelter Dorothea Leslie. Judy recounts in her article "Travelling on the Doric" their experiences on a recent cruise to Bermuda. After just a few hours on the ship, Judy had a feeling of déjà vu and before long she discovered that the Doric had two previous names, the "Hanseatic" and the "Shalom." Well, Judy was aboard the "Shalom" in 1967.

GHI Members Experiment With Electric Heat Systems

by Alan Amberg

The GHI board of directors decided, at its meeting last Thursday, to authorize two pilot projects in electric heating of GHI homes. GHI is now looking for two members, one masonry owner and one frame home owner, to volunteer to convert their homes to radiant electric heat, and allow GHI to measure the cost of electric usage. The test homes will be fitted with resistance radiant heat panels in the ceiling, and an electric hot water heater. These homes will then be disconnected from the oil heating plant. The pilot homes should be end houses, with electrical wiring heavied-up to 150 amps, or ones that can be quickly heavied-up.

The homeowner will be responsible for the cost of heavy-up, installation, and any auxiliary work (i.e., storm windows, insulation, etc.). In return, the homeowner will be provided the heating panels free (retail value about $500) by the manufacturer, TVI, Inc., of Kensington, as part of a special promotional agreement with GHI. These members will be exempt from GHI heating charges and will pay individually for heat. GHI will pay the cost of monitoring electricity consumption. Electricity will be measured by three meters: one for heat only, one for hot water, and one for overall household usage.

Electric Heat vs. Oil Heat

The present system of heat in GHI burns oil to heat water which is then pumped through pipes into the radiators. One pipe carries the heated water throughout all the houses served by that heating plant. According to GHI management the oil heat system is inefficient for several reasons: 1) Heat is lost to crawl spaces, boiler plant and from pipes carrying the hot water; 2) since the pipes have a given water pressure, each person tapping the heat or hot water lessens the amount for those further down the line; and 3) oil heat has a large thermal inertia, i.e., if there is a very cold night, the boiler heats a lot of water—then if the next day is warm the houses are overheated because the water in the system is still hot and cools slowly. Also, in the past eight years, oil prices have risen over 600%, according to GHI president, Don Volk.

Volk and member Steve Curtis listed the following advantages for electric heat: 1) Individual control—member can get just as much as he wants to pay for; 2) option of zone heating—heating only rooms in use; 3) zero thermal inertia—the heating units get hot quickly and cool quickly; 4) lowest capital cost of any heating system—gas takes ductwork; heat pumps are expensive; 5) no loss of BTU's—once the electricity reaches the heating units, it is directly converted to heat; 6) electricity can be generated from many sources.

Existing Units

There are three units in GHI that now have electric heat. All three use baseboard heating units and heat by convection (they heat the cold air at the floor, which rises and sets up space heating air currents).

These members paid for their heating systems. Steve Curtis, 9-M Ridge Road, put in his system for about $2,400 (last October). He does not favor the radiant heat system, which he says heats like the sun's rays (the person, not the air). He contends that when the system is off it will be "like when a cloud passes between you and the sun."

Robert Wilhide, 59-G Ridge Road, converted his home to electric heat last March. His two-bedroom frame end house with a one-bedroom addition has more total outside wall frontage than a three-bedroom frame end house. Wilhide gave the News Review examples of his electric bills. The total electric bill for heat and hot water for November was about $22; December, which was much colder, $45.89.

The breakdown of charges for December follows: main house used 550 Kwh for heat at a cost of $10.61, the addition used 385 Kwh for heat at a cost of $7.43, total hot water use was 290 Kwh at a cost of $5.59; Adjustment Fuel Charge at .0182/Kwh, for the $45.89 total. The heating bill is figured for a temperature of 72 degrees, twenty-four hours a day, for a three person family/two children.

Wilhide attributes his low bills, in part, to the insulation he added (R-12 walls and R-30 ceilings) when the electric system was installed and to his storm windows, but mostly to the reduced rate he receives as an "All-Electric Home," from PEPCO.

The heating system cost $1,492 for the equipment, installation and heavy-up, $433 to insulate the main house, and $153 (plus installation) for the storm windows. (Prices are those of one year ago.)

Wilhide summed up his feelings about electric heat for the News Review, "On a yearly basis, my total savings will result in a 60-75% reduction in heating,

GHI NOTES

Forms for the 1980 Homeowners' Property Tax Credit Program are now available at the GHI offices. Any member who has not previously filled out an application may pick one up. Those who filed last year should receive a form in the mail. Property tax credits are available to all homeowners regardless of age and are based on the family's gross income. Renters who have reached age 60 or are disabled may qualify for a property tax credit. Those forms are available at GHI too. GHI advises all members who think they might be eligible to fill out the simple one-page form and let the State Department of Assessments and Taxation make the final determination on eligibility. Those not eligible will receive a letter of denial and reasons why.

Members should have received their information materials and ballot on the garage referendum. Anyone not receiving this information, please contact the manager's office. All ballots must be received by 5 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 31.

Police Blotter

A 15-year old resident was fatally shot on January 11. In an apparent accident, the youth received a stomach wound when a rifle held by his 18-year old brother discharged. The incident took place in a bedroom where the boys and several friends were listening to music. The older brother, who had recently purchased the rifle for camping and hunting activities, was showing the boys the weapon when it discharged.

Responding to the shooting were police officers Corporal Kenneth Stair, Privates Dave Kress and Tom Justin and Detective Tom Ceccarelli. On the scene also was the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad paramedics from the the Prince Georges County Medical Unit I (Brentwood) and Mayor Gil Weidenfeld.

Last week three indecent exposure cases took place at three different locations within the city. All apparently involved the same man. The first took place late evening behind 168 Westway; the second a half-hour later at the entrance to the - 1 court of Ridge. The third occurred at 1:30 a.m. outside a window of a home in the 9 court of Southway.

The description of the man given by three women were close enough to determine that the person committing the offense was the same man - a white male, approximately in the mid-twenties, 5' 8" - 5' 10", about 150 lbs., with light brown hair reaching a little below the collar.

As a result of a domestic argument, a woman was arrested on Ridge Rd. and charged with assault and disorderly conduct.

A male shoplifting suspect was arrested at the A & P store in the Beltway Plaza.

An 18-year-old male resident of Crescent Road was apprehended by Officer Craddock for attempting to enter a vehicle on Ridge Road. He was charged with attempted breaking and entering and tampering with a motor vehicle, then released upon personal recognizance, pending trial.

The owner of the Continental Hobby Crafts in Beltway Plaza reported an attempted break-in on New Year's Day from the roof through the air vent shaft. Patrol officers responded, assisted by the P.G. County K-9 Unit and the U.S. Park Police helicopter, but suspects escaped.

Officers responding to an alarm at Springhill Lake Elementary School disrupted a break-in in progress. Pvt. Love recovered several recording instruments which had been placed under an open window. Patrol units assisted by P.G. County K-9 units checked the interior of the building but the suspects had already fled.

CITY NOTES

Several members of the general, parks and building maintenance crews worked removing snow from the city streets, parking areas, curb areas, and city walkways. The crew spent one day patching streets throughout the city.

The parks crew has worked several days last week removing dead wood near the Jaycee Clubhouse. The chipper was out picking up Christmas trees. Picnic tables were repaired. Corn was fed to the ducks at the lake. They will continue to be fed during the winter months.

Renovation of the Police Department is continuing. Several members of the building maintenance crew assembled lockers and some have been installed. It was necessary to shorten doors in some of the offices to accommodate carpeting.

The heating system has been repaired at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center gym. The heating system at the City Office Building is now being repaired.

Dr. David Pitt, professor from the University of Maryland Horticulture Department, toured city parks in preparation for selecting a suitable project for his landscape architecture class to participate in during the University's spring semester.

In December an average week's counseling activities were as follows: 41 individuals (19 of whom were under age 18) comprising 18 family units.

The Job Bank had three part time jobs that were completed by three youths. The volunteer tutoring program had 13 students and the GED class ended with a total of 11 participants.

Final coordination for the installation of equipment at the Greenbelt Junior High School Neighborhood Park took place recently. The first phase includes some light thinning of underbrush and installation of a wood climber apparatus, 2 park benches, bike rack, 8 picnic tables and 2 trash receptacles. Work is scheduled to begin soon.
